

Empowering individual investors and unlocking shareholder value

MHM's unique proposition for individual investors

Individual investors suffer from shareholder engagement challenges

1.

Ineffective corporate governance, mis-judged investor communication and poor expectation management can restrain performance and decimate share prices

There are many recent examples where poor corporate governance has led to significant shareholder losses: 4D Pharma, Deepverge, Napster and WANdisco

Individual investors struggle to get the attention of management and boards who focus on large institutional shareholders

When owning <5% of shares, it is difficult to engage effectively with companies where corporate governance is driving business failure or share price under-performance

3.

Companies law allows only members, not beneficial owners, to take action - the vast majority of individual investors hold their shares through nominee account

Being able to provide input and effect change is crucial in resetting the narrative for underperforming share prices

MHM's platform uniquely empowers individual investors to solve these challenges through collective engagement

We know it works:

MHM led individual investors to ground-breaking success at Bidstack, providing the blueprint for empowerment and change*

Individual investors frustrated by the perceived lack of engagement and timely investor communications from the company, alongside corporate governance concerns, a bloated cost base and a declining share price

MHM 'found' and co-ordinated 5% of shareholders to requisition an EGM

To our knowledge, this was the first time a group of individual investors successfully requisitioned an EGM and delivered demonstrable change

Raised the profile of the action through excellent national and investor focused news coverage

Successful action resulted in:

- Two directors stepping down from the board
- Commitment to further review of board roles and skills
- Scheduling of the first formal investor presentation by the company to all shareholders
- Commitment to improve investor communications
